Forty-eight cases. One village. Nobody in it is telling the truth.

Somebody smashed the prize pumpkin at Hollow Creek Farm, and that was only the thirtieth of October. By the time the church bell rings itself on the night of the thirty-first, five people will be somewhere they have spent this whole book swearing they have never been.

- 48 grid puzzles across five linked chapters, warm-up to hard
- Every solution verified unique by computer, twice
- Solvable by pure elimination — you will never have to guess
- Full worked solutions, not just answer keys
- A map of the village, and room to write on every page
